Lafe E. Solomon
 Acting General Counsel
 National Labor Relations Board
 1099 14th Street, N.W.
 Washington, D.C. 20570

Dear Acting General Counsel Solomon:

The National Labor Relations Board's (NLRB) recent action against The Boeing Company is deeply troubling. Although the facts of the case are still in dispute, its eventual outcome could have significant consequences for job-creators and workers. In light of the potential impact on the nation's workforce, apparent inconsistencies surrounding the NLRB's April 20, 2011 complaint merit further explanation.

As you are aware, on March 26, 2010, the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers District Lodge No. 751 filed a charge with the NLRB claiming Boeing violated sections 8(a)(3) and 8(a)(1) of the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA). Central to the charge is Boeing's decision to locate a second 787 Dreamliner assembly line in Charleston, South Carolina. The complaint references alleged statements made by Boeing officials between October 2009 and March 2010 that work stoppages were one reason for choosing the new location.

When asked about the charge in June 2010, the NLRB regional director Richard Ahearn told The Seattle Times "it would have been an easier case for the union to argue if Boeing had moved existing work from Everett, rather than placing new work in Charleston."<sup>1</sup> He was also unable to point to any "bright line" rule to determine whether the company's actions violated the law.<sup>2</sup> Finally, the regional director stated "an initial ruling is weeks away."<sup>3</sup>

More than 10 months later on April 20, 2011, Mr. Ahearn issued a complaint. In contrast to previous statements, he now alleges Boeing "transferred" work from Washington.<sup>4</sup> According to the regional director, the transfer of the assembly line in conjunction with alleged comments made by company officials violates the NLRA.<sup>5</sup>

While we understand that no union employee at the Puget Sound facility has lost his or her job or been financially harmed by what appears to be a legitimate business decision, the NLRB is seeking an extraordinary remedy that requires Boeing to relocate its operations across the country.<sup>6</sup> This would have a detrimental impact on the economy and workers of South Carolina, as well as have a chilling effect upon businesses across the country.

The pivot in position by NLRB officials, as well as the unusual timing, raises serious concerns that warrant congressional inquiry. To better understand the appropriateness and evolution of this complaint, provide the following no later than May 19, 2011:

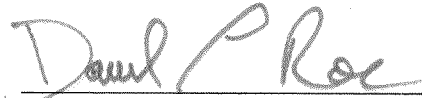

1. A description of what transpired between June 2010 and April 2011 that led the NLRB to alter its opinion in this matter;
2. All documents and communications between the NLRB Region 19 office and the NLRB National office addressing the Boeing complaint;
3. All documents and communications that support the NLRB's position that work is being "transferred" in this case; and
4. Past precedent that supports a finding that Boeing violated sections 8(a)(3) and 8(a)(1) of the NLRA when it decided to locate, not transfer, a second assembly line.

Thank you for your cooperation in this matter. If you have any questions regarding this request, please contact Marvin Kaplan of the Committee staff at (202) 225-7101.

Sincerely,

John Kline

8. When you produce documents, you should identify the paragraph in the Committee's request to which the documents respond.

14. If a date or other descriptive detail set forth in this request referring to a document is inaccurate, but the actual date or other descriptive detail is known to you or is otherwise apparent from the context of the request, you should produce all documents which would be responsive as if the date or other descriptive detail were correct.
15. The time period covered by this request is included in the attached request. To the extent a time period is not specified, produce relevant documents from January 1, 2009 to the present.
16. This request is continuing in nature and applies to any newly-discovered information. Any record, document, compilation of data or information, not produced because it has not been located or discovered by the return date, shall be produced immediately upon subsequent location or discovery.

Upon completion of the document production, you should submit a written certification, signed by you or your counsel, stating that: (1) a diligent search has been completed of all documents in your possession, custody, or control which reasonably could contain responsive documents; and (2) all documents located during the search that are responsive have been produced to the Committee.
